

In retail displays, true color representation is imperative – particularly with the color white. While standard LED technology with high CRI can effectively recreate the entire color spectrum, it lacks clarity in the white and blue spectrum. Zumtobel solves this problem by introducing True Gamut Rendering (TGR) LED technology. TGR applies a special phosphor coating to the LED chip, enhancing the blue spectrum that delivers brilliant, crisp white. The result is a pure representation of the entire color spectrum – including white.

with TGR Technology

Light plays a truly significant role in achieving an authentic retail presentation. In industries such as fashion and foods, seemingly subtle differences in hue can sell the product. TGR technology developed by Zumtobel displays all colors, including white, with particular purity, in an unmatched and until now impossible quality. With TGR, whites are no longer gray or bluish, greens don't look yellow and browns don't look dull.
